Voldis moving towards a Data Driven organisation

Voldis is Mahou San Miguel's own distribution area. It has more than 600 employees, 2,600 orders per day and 15 warehouses throughout Spain.

Due to its activity and its high volume of business, it generates a large amount of data, which, without an adequate governance system, complicates the management and exploitation of information and hinders communication between the different areas of the organisation.

Luce IT helped to organise information in a more optimal way, enabling data-driven decision making that supports its business strategies, leading to the achievement of its objectives.

Customer Challenges

Voldis needed to handle data in an agile way to obtain more accurate business conclusions and accelerate the achievement of its objectives.

The 4 main areas (finance, commercial, operations and systems) were using information independently and without established governance.

With a large volume of data, the consumption of information by users affected the performance of the Microsoft Dynamics Nav operational system.

Partner Solution

Since 2019, Luce IT presents a new vision of data governance to Voldis by creating an environment of cultural and digital transformation from data.

It started with the design and implementation of data driven BI reports with Power BI, offering a total view of best practice visualisation adapted to all stakeholders.

A robust and scalable data architecture is currently being created, which allows the ingestion, processing and exploitation of information in an agile and flexible way, with a multitude of future use cases.

Customer Benefits

- Standardisation of the different reports presented within the organisation.
- Reduction of the time taken to obtain reports.
- Creating an architecture capable of supporting the increased demand for data.
